The String Octet in E-flat major, Op. 20, was written by Felix Mendelssohn during the fall of 1825 and completed on October 15 at the age of 16. Written for four violins, two violas, and two cellos this work created a new genre in the world of chamber music. Because of this, the octet would be the piece that put Mendelssohn's name with other composers of his time and before him.
