The Book of the New Sun (1980–1983) is a series of four science fantasy novels, a tetralogy or single four-volume novel written by the American author Gene Wolfe. It inaugurated the "Solar Cycle" that Wolfe continued by setting other works in the same universe. Gene Wolfe had originally intended the story to be a 40,000-word novella called "The Feast of Saint Catherine", meant to be published ... Page 2/6

There is action and adventure in doses - particularly in my favorite volume The Sword of the Lictor. Each of the four volumes is composed of short chapters, very episodic, piling wonder upon bewilderment upon mystery. There are entire histories and geographies, artifacts and customs only hinted at or hazily inferred; much for a tolerant and ...

The Roman term was lictor. Some of the duties of the Roman constables were policelike in nature, but the constables were strictly attached to the magistrate, with the responsibility of being constantly at his service. They were not directly subject to the wishes of the people but only to the orders of their magistrate.
